A Message from the Pulaski County Middle School Principal:

Hello Pulaski County,

I wanted to take this opportunity to update the community on the status of the new PCMS building and some of what is going to prepare for next school year.

The building itself is coming along very nicely. At the time of this message being posted, nearly all of the building is “under roof.” That is important in the construction business because it allows the crew to continue to work through inclement weather because they have the luxury of temporary heat and lighting. Before now, the crew was limited as to what work could be done based on the conditions outside.

The athletic fields around the school are taking shape and look very nice. You’ll notice room for softball, baseball and soccer. Those are sports that we are planning to offer next spring! We look forward to broadening the after-school opportunities for our students.

As far as internally, we have begun placing teachers in certain academic and exploratory positions. Finishing the teacher placements and room assignments will be our focus for the next several weeks.

Our Vision Statement has been proposed and approved by our stakeholders and committees and is now featured on this site. “Valuing our traditions, Growing our Future, Uniting our Community”

Our Building Leadership Team (consisting of community members, teachers and administrators from both Pulaski Middle and Dublin Middle Schools) is now working on our School-wide Expectations for the new school. This will outline what it means to be a successful student at Pulaski County Middle School. We will have updates on the progress of that initiative when they are available.

Please continue to check back here often for more updates, messages and pictures. PCMS will soon be open and ready for its first group of Pulaski Co. Middle School Cougars! The anticipation and excitement continues to build!

Respectfully,

Adam Joyce
